Did you say Haiti!?

Yes! Haiti is a beautiful, tropical, mountainous, vibrant country of eleven million people. Haiti has many beautiful beaches, mountain get-aways, and historical sites. Direct flights from Miami, Fort Lauderdale, Montreal, New York, and Atlanta arrive in Port-au-Prince daily from many major airlines. Haiti's national protestant church is growing in both size and maturity.

Haiti can be a challenging place to live and work. There are major problems like unemployment, illiteracy, instability, corruption, and lack of reliable infrastructures. While these are indeed problems, Haiti is statistically the safest country in the region with a murder rate of less than half that of the regional average. A major focus of ministries currently working in Haiti is to develop the maturity of leadership and sustainability of development programs. QC is well positioned to encourage, guide, mentor, and disciple Haiti's next generation of leaders.

There are over 1 million people of Haitian descent living in the United States and Canada and that number continues to grow. For Quisqueya Chapel, this means that more and more people living in Haiti are fluent in English. The English-speaking community is full of spiritually lost people in need of discipleship and a church community.

What Opportunities are there at QC?

In the last twenty years, QC has evolved from a church populated mostly by expatriate missionaries and aid workers to a international congregation made up primarily of Haitians desiring to worship in the English language. Because of this transition, one of the major opportunities at QC is the integration of Haitians and expatriates into the life of the congregation.

- to help make QC a place where the English-speaking Haitian community and the English-speaking expat community grow together. Gal 3:28: "There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus."
- to better utilize the Chapel's property for Christian ministry. Some ideas that QC has considered include sports ministries, offices of Christian NGOs, and providing space for a Christian school.
- to rebuild a once dynamic youth ministry.
- to grow QC through discipleship, small groups, bible studies.
- to develop leadership both in QC and in Haiti to advance God's Kingdom.
- to better engage the greater English-speaking expat community including NGOs, embassies, and other groups. Specifically, to become socially active in the expat community for both the sake of soul-winning and to add to the congregation additional leadership and financial support.

- The expat community in Haiti is very large (i.e. over 45,000 US citizens live in Haiti), and church involvement is low with many expats forming small groups or home churches. In five years, with the right leader, QC can easily grow to over 500 people. With a corresponding rise in income the senior pastor could be fully paid and a youth pastor be brought on board.

- Pastoring QC in Port-au-Prince is somewhat akin to a big fish in a small bowl. The opportunities to make an impact within leadership and upper economic strata in the community is substantial.

Frequently Asked Questions

1. Does QC offer a salary and benefits? QC offers a salary that is approximately half of what a pastor with a family would need to live in Haiti. The Chapel desires a salary structure which is modest, adequate, and in keeping with prevailing standards within the congregation. However, the current financial situation of the Chapel does not permit paying the amount desired. In light of this, the Chapel requires the pastor to raise a portion of his own support from external sources. As the financial situation of the Chapel changes, this support raising and partial salary arrangement will be evaluated and adjusted as needed. The raising of support, both prayer and financial, should be a priority for the senior pastor. Each year the chapel will allot time for maintaining relationships with supporters. Beyond the financial benefits, the chapel believes that this type of spiritual support is a necessity for pastoring a congregation in Haiti.

- 2. Does QC offer a moving allowance? QC offers a one-time moving and monthly transportation allowance, but a candidate will have to purchase a vehicle.
- 3. What about language? QC is an English-speaking congregation, but willingness to learn Haitian Kreyòl or knowledge of French is an advantage. QC will offer an opportunity for the new Senior Pastor to do some language learning.

4. Who will help me if I come to Haiti? QC members will provide an orientation to life in Port-au-Prince to our new pastor and his family. The QC family has a wealth of experience, contacts, and information to serve the new pastor and his family.

5. Where will I live? Most expat families involved at QC rent private homes in various neighborhoods in the Port-au-Prince and surrounding area. QC does not own a house.

6. What options are there for my children's schooling? Only a few blocks away from QC there is an accredited, English-speaking, K-12 Christian school using an American curriculum. Several of our children have also attended private Haitian schools taught in French.

7. Can I affiliate with a mission for the purposes of support raising and still serve at QC? Yes, it is recommended.

8. What is the denominational history of QC? QC is not affiliated with any denomination and is not funded by any other church or ministry. According to its bylaws, the ministries of QC must be welcoming to those of any Protestant denomination. In its teaching and preaching, QC seeks to embrace attenders from a diverse evangelical backgrounds as well as welcoming non-believers and the unchurched.
